ANOTHER EARLY MORNING BLAZE

Double Barn of J. A. Tawney in the Rear of Middle Street Destroyed in Early Morning Fire together with Quantity of Hay.

Another fire of mysterious origin occurred in Gettysburg early Sunday morning when the large double barn of J. A. Tawney in the rear of his tenant houses on West Middle street was totally destroyed by fire, all that remains of the structure and its contents being the charred walls and some scorched hay. The loss on the building amounts to several hundred dollars partly covered by insurance. The hay, which belonged to Frank J. Deardorff, is a total loss of about $100.

The fire started in the hay mow and had gotten a good start when discovered. Officer O'Riley rang the bells and the firemen responded promptly. The blowing of whistles served to arouse the remainder of the citizens and a big crowd soon gathered at the scene. The structure was a veritable mass of flames by the time the first stream was gotten on it and it was soon seen that nothing could be saved there. Efforts were then put forth to save the stable of Jacob Gilbert which is located next to that of Mr. Tawney. In this the firemen were successful notwithstanding the fact that the building was on fire a number of times.

The fire in the Tawney stable was fought from both ends and finally confined to the center where it was soon gotten under control though it burned at intervals up until Sunday afternoon. For quite a while it was impossible to get at the flames on the inside as the walls stood firm. Finally a door was chopped open and a huge mass of fire shot out.

At this opening a stream was then directed and a heavy cloud of black smoke which rolled upward told that their labors were having the desired effect. Large quantities of sparks were carried some little distance but no damage was done.

In the barn were about sixty chickens and the majority of these are missing though it is not believed that they were burned. Half belonged to Clarence E. Ohler and the remainder to Herbert Allison. A few of the fowls were saved, some flew away and it is believed that a number were stolen by those who were early at the blaze.

The general feeling in town is that the fire was of incendiary origin. The large door leading from the stable into the alley was found open by those who were first at the fire but it is said that this door is often found open showing that tramps are accustomed to find a night's lodging in the building. Whether one of these accidentally or intentionally set fire to the hay is not known.

The similarity of the Tawney and Mickleys fires leads many to believe that a fire bug is working here but nothing other than mere speculation is responsible for this theory.

HUNTER SHOOTS HIS COMPANION

First Accident of the Season in this Section Occurs when Mr. Happel, formerly of Gettysburg Shoots Man.

Harry Graham, a young married man of twenty two years, residing between Blue Ridge Summit and Highfield, was painfully injured late Friday afternoon, while on a hunting expedition.

He was hunting with Frank Happel, of Blue Ridge Summit, when he was accidentally shot in the head by Mr. Happel. As a consequence his left eye has been removed from its socket. Mr. Happel is a former resident of Gettysburg, having conducted the Carlisle street meat store several years ago.

Mr. Graham and Mr. Happel were hunting partridges on the edge of Dr. A. Barr Snively's Blue Ridge Mountain sanatorium property. They were standing together in a closed space, when Mr. Happel, saying he would go into the bushes to drive up the birds there, left Mr. Graham and went into the thicket along side the clearing.

He expected that Mr. Graham would remain in the clearing and when he had started the birds, shot at them.

Unfortunately, Mr. Graham, too, had gone into the bushes and was in line with Mr. Happel's gun when he discharged it, and probably only twenty feet distant.

Dozens of the small bird shot hit Mr. Graham about the head, entering his forehead, his scalp and his face.

Two of the shots struck him fairly in the left eye and destroyed the sight. He was hurried to Dr. Snively's sanatorium, where he was given temporary treatment.

Dr. A. Barr Snively arrived there soon afterward and, after an examination, decided that the eye must be removed and that for this purpose it would be best to take the man to the Chambersburg hospital. The trip to the hospital was made and the eye was there removed.

The extent of Mr. Graham's injury cannot be accurately told. The shot which destroyed the sight of his eye were not found by the surgeons and they may have passed through the eye into the brain, in which case there may be severe suffering for the unfortunate young man. This will be determined after a few days.

Mr. Graham's face had on it some powder marks and this leads to the belief that he was not more than twenty feet from Mr. Graham at the time the shot was fired.

Mr. Happel regrets exceedingly the result of his shot. No blame attaches to him but he is extremely sorry for the outcome, nevertheless.

Mr. Graham is a young laborer of the Blue Ridge Summit section and an industrious and respected man. He has a wife and one child.

GETTYSBURG WINS FOOT BALL GAME

Defeats Lebanon Valley in Well Played Game of Foot Ball on Nixon Field by Score of 24 to 0. Visitors Nearly Scored.

On Saturday afternoon Gettysburg College defeated Lebanon Valley in an interesting game of foot ball on Nixon Field by the score of 24 to 0.

The orange and blue were in fine fettle and put up a good article of ball. Strong on the offense, they were able to roll up eighteen points in the first half and, equally strong on the defense, prevented the Annville boys from threatening the home goal during this period of the game. Three touchdowns and three goals made up the eighteen points.

Almost the entire line up was changed during the second half and work was harder but another touchdown and goal were secured about the middle of the half.

Following this score Lebanon Valley had the strong West wind on their backs and after gaining materially by exchanging kick got the ball on Gettysburg's twenty five yard line. Several good gains got it close to the goal and it was within the five yard line when a desperate line plunge was tried. Gettysburg held firm and the ball was down eight inches from the goal line. The end of the half was called before Lebanon Valley could rush the ball again and the game ended Gettysburg 24, Lebanon Valley 0.

The attendance and interest were far below that of the Saturday previous but lovers of the game were treated to a good contest and one which was full of end runs, punting and good line backs, keeping the cheering section busy yelling for the individual players who were gaining ground or stopping the opposing plays.

EXPRESS TRAIN DERAILED

One Man Killed and Fourteen Others Injured in Accident Near Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—Dead Man's Head Crushed as Car Turned Over.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Oct. 18. — A New York Central express, bringing William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., W. H. Newman and President W. C. Brown, of the New York Central, back to New York from an inspection trip, was wrecked by a broken rail just south of Rhinecliff station, seventeen miles north of here. James Krakowski was killed and fourteen others were injured. Eight of the nine cars of the train left the rails. The smoker and day coach landed in a heap half across the northbound tracks, and it was in these cars that the casualties occurred. The fireman of the wrecked train by a margin of two minutes flagged a northbound express and saved it from crashing into the broken cars.

There were fifty or sixty men in the smoker. On the left side of the smoker sat Krakowski. When he felt the brakes go on and heard the thunder of the wheels on the ties he poked his head close against the windowpane to see what was the matter. A tie came up out of the dark and crushed his head into a jelly. A friend of Krakowski's was sitting directly across the aisle when he felt the car going over. He grabbed for the overhead baggage rack and managed to keep upright. His back was spattered with his friend's blood.

Seven or eight others in the car were cut with the flying glass and doubled up under the seats.

In the second car things were not quite so bad. Two women were taken out apparently badly injured. Six of the injured were taken to Albany and eight more were hurried to New York.

President Brown and Mr. Vanderbilt got out of their cars as soon as they could. Mr. Brown took charge of the work of clearing away the wreckage until trains began to move again on the northbound track.

Mr. Vanderbilt and Mr. Brown tried to get at the cause of the wreck. A broken rail was found just at the point where the tracks began to tilt, and it was held to have been accountable for the wreck.

PRISON BEATING FATAL

North Carolina Stirred by Another Homicide in Jail.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 18.—The killing of convicts by state guards has become frequent this year and a storm of indignation is sweeping over the state. The public was aroused again by the news that at the state penitentiary at Raleigh an autopsy was being held by order of the governor on the body of George Murphy, a short term convict from Rowan county, who had just been killed by a guard named Dupree.

Murphy died almost immediately after being assaulted by the guard in the hospital part of the prison, where Murphy was confined by illness. He got hold of some liquor and became partly intoxicated. The guard, with three assistants went to take the sick man to a dark cell for punishment. Although Murphy was so ill that he could not walk without crutches because he resisted the guard struck him several blows and he died within ten minutes.

Compressed Air Forms Prevent Girl From Drowning.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 18.—Mary McDowell, twenty-five years of age, decided she would end this mortal coil and took a flying leap into the Allegheny river, from the depths of which she never expected to rise.

Much to her surprise, after the first plunge, she was unable to keep her head below the surface, although the water is twelve feet deep where she had essayed to end her life. After much resolute kicking Miss McDowell was towed to shore by Frank Harris.

An examination disclosed the fact that the young woman wore compressed air hip and chest pads, which acted as life preservers. She was allowed to go home after declaring she was sorry she had attempted to take her life.

Hunter Tries to Poke a Squirrel From Stone Pile.

York, Pa., Oct. 18.—In an effort to chase a squirrel from beneath a pile of stones, Samuel Smith, twenty-five years old, was shot and killed near his home at Bittersville.

Smith, with several companions, was hunting for squirrels, and the party had chased one into a pile of stones. The hammer of the gun came in contact with a stone and the weapon was discharged, the lead striking Smith under the left arm, almost tearing it from his body.

A heel of one of his opponents was turned in such a way that when Stroppe fell his stomach struck it. His abdomen is seriously affected, and his doctor can give his family no hope for the lad's recovery.

"NO MORE ROOM AT TOP"

John Mitchell Says No Man Should Rise Over Bodies of Fellow Men.

Atlantic City, Oct. 18.—To an audience composed of organized labor men in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers of America, declared: "There is no more room at the top."

"The school teacher's advice to her pupils, and the mother's command to her son, to climb to the top," he said, "is a futile echo of the past, for there is no more room at the top. I do not mean that men should not take advantage of every opportunity for self-advancement, but I do insist that no man has a right to go up by treading upon the bodies of his fellow men." Mr. Mitchell said the great mass of working men would always remain the mass they are today. He denied that labor unionism had contributed to this result by leveling men to a common standard in respect to compensation.

New Orleans, Oct. 18.—A wireless message from the stranded Southern Pacific steamer Antilles states that all of the passengers of the stranded steamer have been safely transferred to the steamer Comus, now enroute to New York.

Aged Magazine Writer a Suicide.

White Plains, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Miss Mary Robinson, seventy years old, who wrote for magazines and who had resided alone in a little cottage on Melbourne avenue for years, committed suicide by inhaling gas.

Tobacco Men's Big Pool.

Cincinnati, Oct. 18.—It is reported officially here that 137,000 acres of the 1909 Burley tobacco crop has been pooled.

A remarkable instance of the increase in value of Washington fruit lands is told in connection with one orchard proprietor in the Hood river valley who nine years ago advised one of his workmen to buy a forty next his own. The latter closed the deal at $15 per acre. The tract was set to apples and is today valued at $2,000 an acre, or $80,000. This snatches of the days of '49, only the gold is picked off the trees instead of being washed out of the ground.

JOHNSON WINS BY KNOCKOUT

Negro Champion Retains Heavyweight Title.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 18. — The championship fight between Jack Johnson and Stanley Ketchel ended in the twelfth round with one of the most spectacular knockouts ever seen in the ring. If the two men had been accomplished actors they couldn't have devised anything half so good for moving pictures as the show that was put up when the twelfth round was half finished. Johnson received a blow on the side of the head which, with Stanley's weight following, knocked the negro off his feet.

When he came up he simulated grogginess and poor Stanley rushed in to deliver the finishing blow and was met by a right to the jaw which would have felled an ox. This was followed with a left. Ketchel went down flat on his back and the swing which Johnson gave in delivering the left hand punch carried him over Ketchel and sent him sprawling on all fours right into his own corner. Referee Jack Welch called up to nine, but Stanley couldn't lift his head. Then the Michigan lion was counted out for the second time in his many fights.

JOHNSON WILL MEET JEFF

Colored Man Is Anxious to Fight the Ex-Heavyweight Champion.

New York, Oct. 18.—Jim Jeffries will be compelled to make a match with Jack Johnson for the heavyweight championship of the world or admit that he does not intend to re-enter the prize ring. Jeffries is on the Lusitania, which will arrive here Thursday, and has promised to make arrangements for the big fight without further delay.

Johnson is ready to fight Jeffries right off the reel, he says, but he probably knows that Jeffries will not be in his best condition before March or April.

POULTRY FARM WORK IN MOVING PICTURES

U. S. Department of Agriculture Gets Big Film.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 18.—In connection with the New York state department of agriculture, the United States department of agriculture is arranging to give a series of moving picture demonstrations of how to conduct a poultry farm.

Officials at the college said that during the past week L. S. Williams, of Washington, had been taking several thousand feet of films at the poultry farm, and that if the experiment was a success he would return to get a complete pictorial account of the work that is being done here.

Moving pictures were taken of the poultry course students at work at the various poultry houses, feeders, incubators and machines, and a panorama of the entire college poultry farm, with its thousands of fowls of all kind, was made.

It is believed they will be of especial educational value at county and state fairs.

QUAY'S STATUE PUT UP

Erected in Pennsylvania's Capitol Out of Reach of Hostile Persons.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 18.—After having lain in storage as unclaimed freight for several weeks, following a year's refusal on the part of Governor Stuart and his associates on the board of public grounds and buildings to have anything to do with it, the white marble statue of the late United States Senator Quay was erected in the rotunda of the capitol.

The statue occupies a niche in the rotunda high above the reach of vandals, threats having been made that if it were ever erected it would be mutilated.

Shoots Alleged Negro Assailant.

Chester, Pa., Oct. 18. — Alighting from a trolley car at Seventh and Lloyd streets, John Huttmaecker and John Buss were attacked by two negroes. Huttmaecker drew a revolver and shot one of the men, Theodore Gibbs, who is in the Chester hospital in a serious condition, one leg being amputated. His companion, Snyder Morris, is under arrest, as are also Huttmaecker and Buss, who furnished bail for their appearance.

Want New Form of Government.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 18.—The Union Labor club caused a sensation when it became generally known that their platform was for the abolition of the office of mayor, board of control and all fee offices and the appointment of a commission form of city government. The club is backing C. H. Perry for the state legislature, and upon this platform Perry will ask the votes of the people next month.

Cartridge a Bad Plaything.

Greenbush, Va., Oct. 18. — Harry 'righman, an eleven-year-old boy, was painfully injured by the explosion of a cartridge with which he was playing. Three of the fingers of his left hand were badly lacerated. The little fellow said he began to strike the end of the cartridge with a big nail, when it exploded.

State Experimental Station.

The passage of a law in the state of North Dakota establishing a good roads experimental station is a movement in the right direction. The experimental roads are not to be great in extent, one running from the capitol building at Bismarck to Fort Lincoln and the other from the state penitentiary to the Missouri river, but they are long enough and in sufficiently close proximity to the capitol to be object lessons to the members of the next legislature. North Dakota's entrance into the list of state aid states may be confidently looked for two years hence.

GRADING UP THE HERD.

Every farmer after careful investigation should decide what breed of cows will be best for its particular purpose, and then as far as possible he should breed up to the standard he has in view. Breed for a purpose and then keep steadily at it with a proper idea in view that will not allow of any divergence or mixing up of breeds.

Too much cannot be said of the importance of putting pure bred bulls of the dairy herd. The milk yield of a cow depends mainly upon her inherent milk yielding capacity. The milk yielding capacity of a herd can be largely increased by careful selection and breeding.

In herds where a large milk yield is desired special attention must be paid to using in the breed only those heifers which have been bred from best cows. The heifers from poor milkers and badly formed cows should on no account be retained, as they inherit the qualities of their mothers.

When we consider that many dairy cows yield only 100 pounds of commercial butter, while others yield up to 400 pounds, the need for grading up will be readily understood. By selecting heifers from deep milking cows and continuing the process for a sufficient length of time the average milk yield will be considerably increased.

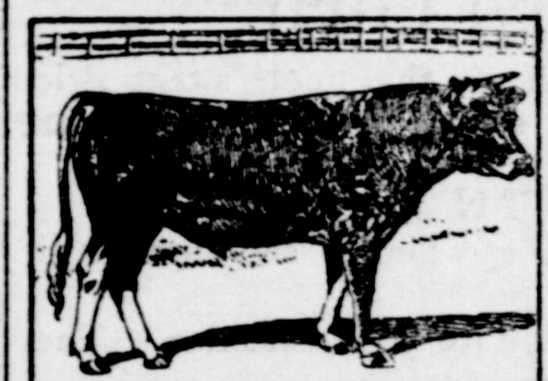

The great fault with many dairymen is that they stint the feed. If the best results are to be obtained the cows must be fed well. The original cow was not an ideal dairy animal. She has been made so by selection and feeding. If we neglect these two things we cannot hope to improve the herds.

Breeding from good milkers will invariably produce calves which later on will give a large milk yield. On the other hand, breeding from animals whose parentage is unknown and which are crossbred must at the best be only guesswork—uncertain and unsatisfactory in its results. We may possess cows which are heavy milkers, yet their calves may not possess the same desirable qualities. As a rule, however, it will be found that good milking cows produce equally good milking heifers, provided they have been bred from a suitable bull.

Especially care should be exercised in selecting the class of sire to be used in the herd. He should be pure bred and a descendant from a deep milking strain. This point is of very great importance, but is very often entirely neglected.

It is a mistake to suppose that every pure bred bull is a good dairy animal. The sire influences the milking qualities of all the heifers in the herd. Unless the breeding of the bull is attended to little and uncertain progress can be made in the improvement of the milking capacities of the heifers. Only when both parents are descended from good milking strains can it be expected that the progeny will be good dairy animals.

Many farmers act unwisely in disposing of their great aged bulls just at the time when the owners are able to form an accurate opinion of their values as sires. It is an old and wise saying, "Judge a bull by the heifers he produces."

If the progeny are up to the expectations or beyond them, why dispose of such a sire? The answer is invariably that his heifers are coming in and he must be disposed of. This is a great mistake. It would pay fourfold to retain this proved sire for the old cows and purchase or use a young bull for the heifers. The best plan is to buy the tried sires and judge them through their heifers.

In this matter of grading up the dairy herd one should be guided by local and climatic conditions; also by nature and pastures. He should consider well before making a selection and especially in new districts, for often we find a man breeding in a certain line for years and then finding out he has made a bad choice, with the result that the years have been wasted and he has to make a fresh start.

According to a London paper, the grouse moors of Scotland yield a revenue in rentals of from $1,000 to $2,500 annually. The practice of letting the moors seems to have started in 1805, when $25 was received for one near Pitlochry, but for twenty or more years after this the revenues amounted to little or nothing.

NO MORE GRAY HAIR

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made and used a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hairs before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair, and are fast following suit. The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready to use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. As a scalp tonic and color restorer, this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers, and it can be bought for 50 cents and $1 a bottle at almost any first-class drug store, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price. For sale and recommended by People Drug Store.

KILLS HUSBAND AND HERSELF

In Death Struggle Wife Fires Upon Her Assailant.

WAS ARMED WITH BIG KNIFE

When Driven to Bay by Infuriated Man She Stopped His Rush With a Bullet—Turned on Gas and Fired Shot Into Her Heart.

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—Stricken with remorse after shooting her husband, Morris, aged thirty-nine years, through the heart in self-defense, Mrs. Alice Harper, aged forty-two years, of 3447 North Hutchinson street, opened all the gas jets in the house and then turned the deadly weapon on herself, according to the police theory. She was found by her son-in-law, C. M. Madgey, of 3534 Orkney street, in her home with a bullet wound over her heart.

The tragic scene that was enacted in the little house, where the pair alone met such a violent death, was without living witnesses, but the interior of each room on both floors of the modest home is a mute informant of the wild hours of the dead couple before they died. From the kitchen to the diningroom and then into the parlor conditions indicated the couple struggled, breaking and overturning everything that stood in the way of their frantic progress. Up the stairs the woman ran for protection and the husband followed. Then in the dark little rear chamber the pursuit terminated when the woman, driven to bay in a corner, used the weapon in her hand and stopped the advance of the man who rushed upon her with a long-bladed knife. The bodies were found within a few feet of each other. The man's clenched hand was closed around the handle of a murderous looking knife. The woman still had a death grip on the revolver.

Was Nearly Starved.

The death of the Harpers is the culmination of nine years of unhappy married life. Causes for dispute between the couple were numerous, neighbors say, but the chief one was that Harper, despite the fact that he had employment as a butcher's helper, never gave his wife money. However, so firm was her determination to keep her own home that she refused the invitation of her married daughter to make her home with her children and sought enough for subsistence from her uncle in Baltimore. His scanty contributions had from time to time enabled Mrs. Harper barely to get along, but lately she had frequently neared starvation, with only bread and hot water for a meal. All appeals to her husband for support failed.

JOHN D.'S ADVICE TO BOYS

"Save Your Money and We Will Have Heaven on Earth."

Cleveland, O., Oct. 18.—"Save your money; don't spend it on unnecessary things," is the advice of John D. Rockefeller, who spoke to the boys of his Sunday school.

"It is a fine thing to have money; to be able to do things for some one else," said Mr. Rockefeller. "That is the purpose we were made for. The highest service we can render God is to do something for the ignorant, the poor and those in trouble. If everyone did as much as he could for others we would have a regular heaven on the earth."

WOMAN DIES IN CHURCH

Stricken With Paralysis as Services Were About to Begin.

Lancaster, Pa., Oct. 18.—As the services were about to begin at St. Paul's Methodist church, Mrs. George W. Killian, sixty years old, wife of a prominent carriage manufacturer, was attacked with paralysis, dying in her pew a few minutes later. On account of the excitement the congregation had to be dismissed.

Mrs. Taft Well; Walks to Church.

Washington, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Taft, who returned to the White House Saturday from Beverly, attended morning service in St. John's Episcopal church Sunday. She walked from the White House through Lafayette square, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Louis More, of Cincinnati. She looked remarkably well, and showed no trace of her recent illness.

Seattle Exhibition Closes.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 18.—At midnight Saturday night, after a farewell address by President J. E. Childberg to an immense throng, the 150,000 electric lights of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition were put out, closing the world's fair of 1909. The total attendance was nearly 3,730,000.

Spanish Senator Accused.

Madrid, Oct. 18.—A complaint has been filed with the senate, signed by the captain general of Catalonia, asking for the prosecution of the Republican Senator Ortega, who is charged with attempting to burn the Jesuit college at Barcelona during the July riots.

A phenomenon that is said to have been witnessed but once before within the memory of people living near Niagara falls was the sight of the falls without water flowing over them, due to the fact that ice from Lake Erie had completely blocked the river above the falls. In places the ice was piled to the depth of sixty feet, the jam being finally dislodged by the use of large quantities of dynamite. The damage to property along the river from this miniature glacier is placed at $1,000,000.

THE TAFT-DIAZ MEETING

Former Strengthens U. S. Interests in Mexico and Later Gains Politically. San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 18.—Both the Mexican and the United States governments expect important results from the Taft-Diaz meeting at El Paso. President Diaz eagerly accepted the opportunity as a means of strengthening his administration against possible revolutionary movements and President Taft saw in the international program a means of further safeguarding the vast interests of the United States in Mexico. Aside from the personal element, these are the motives that prompted the exchange of courtesies on the border.

The ringing of a dozen church bells was the welcome that San Antonio gave to President Taft upon his arrival here. It was a 650-mile jump, one of the longest the president has taken on the trip.

ROBBED OF $10,000

Thieves Get Race Track Winnings of Man as He Goes Home Rejoicing.

New York, Oct. 18.—Police are looking for the thief who got away with $8000 in money and jewelry and $2000 in checks belonging to Fred L. King, of Flatbush.

King won most of the cash at the Jamaica track. He was on a Flatbush avenue car, when two men pushed past him, one of them lurching heavily against him and treading upon his foot. He did not miss his wallet, however, until he was entering his house.

MAN LIVED EIGHTEEN HOURS UNDER WATER

Sailor in Hold of Capsized Vessel Saved by Compressed Air.

Crisfield, Md., Oct. 18.—After living in the forepeak of a capsized vessel in Tanager sound for eighteen hours, James O'Donnell, one of a crew of six thought to have been drowned after the rescue of the other five members of the crew, was rescued when the boat was turned over. O'Donnell had a remarkable experience, and he owes his life to the fact that when the vessel turned over in the gale, considerable air was compressed into the hull, and this enabled him to breathe and remain alive, although trapped like a rat.

The accident occurred just off Deals Island. One of the heavy rollers hit the little vessel, and in a few moments it capsized. All of those on board, with the exception of O'Donnell, were able to jump off before the boat overturned. O'Donnell was in the forepeak, and when the vessel capsized found himself in prison.

All of the other members of the crew clung to the sides of the overturned boat until they were rescued. Sunday Captain Webster and some of the crew went out to his vessel to see about the damage and attempted to turn her over. After hard work they finally succeeded, and to their astonishment they found O'Donnell in the forepeak of the boat. He was in a very weak condition when rescued and could have held out very little longer.

AGITATION GRIEVES POPE

His Physician Stops Audiences, Fearing a Breakdown Under the Strain.

Rome, Oct. 18.—The pope has granted no public audiences lately. Dr. Petacci fears a recurrence of his recent illness. Dr. Petacci admits that the recent anti-clerical agitation has gripped and worried the pope, who is restless, despondent and often saddened to the verge of tears.

ABRUZZI KING OF GREECE

Italian Paper Thinks Choice Will Fall on Him if King George Abdicates.

Rome, Oct. 18.—The Stampa, of Turin, states that a majority of the leaders in the recent military movement in Greece favor a plan to offer the crown to the Duke of the Abruzzi, whose name has been connected so long and frequently with that of Miss Katherine Elkins, upon the eventual abdication of King George.

Law to Guarantee Deposits Invalid.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 18.—The Nebraska bank deposits guarantee law, supported by William J. Bryan and enacted by the last legislature, is invalid, so the federal court decides. Judges Vandeventer and T. C. Munger, at Lincoln, handed down a decision affirming the decision of the lower court making permanent the temporary injunction granted by the district court preventing the law from going into operation.

$400,000 Fire in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 18.—Property to the value of $400,000 was destroyed, six firemen were injured and eight others narrowly escaped death at a fire in the big building at the southeast corner of Baltimore and Eutaw streets. The blaze was one of the most dangerous that has occurred in this city for some time.

McCarren's Condition Favorable.

New York, Oct. 18.—State Senator Patrick H. McCarren's fight against the effects of an operation for appendicitis, which he underwent on Wednesday last, is reported as progressing favorably. Dr. P. C. Hughes, however, would not say all danger has passed.

In a larger degree than almost any other substance milk is susceptible to contamination by a filthy environment. On this account the stable in which the cows are kept, the food which they eat, the pails and separator or cans in which the milk is handled and the room in which it is stored should be kept as sweet and clean as possible. The highest grade of cream and butter product is secured when the utmost attention is paid to this one matter of cleanliness.

U. S. DIPLOMAT FOUND DYING

William I. Buchanan Dies Suddenly in London.

CLAD IN EVENING DRESS

Policeman Discovered Him Clinging to a Railing in the Street, Too Ill to Speak—Died Before Doctors Could Aid Him.

London, Oct. 18.—Ex-Judge William I. Buchanan, formerly American minister to Panama and later special envoy to Venezuela, died in this city. Near midnight a policeman who was patrolling Park lane found a man in evening dress clinging to the railings outside of No. 10. He was unable to speak and was evidently very ill. The policeman took him to St. George's hospital, where he died before the doctors could aid him. Death was caused by heart disease.

The body was taken to a mortuary, where it was identified by the manager of Claridge's hotel, where Mr. Buchanan frequently stayed. He went out to dine apparently well. There is no suspicion whatever of violence.

At Work on Venezuelan Claims.

Mr. Buchanan, who had come to London on a mission for the United States government in connection with the Venezuelan claims, had been here for several weeks. He previously had visited Berlin and Paris. He took up quarters at one of the most fashionable hotels in the city, which is located about half a mile from Park lane.

The American embassy and the coroner took charge of Mr. Buchanan's effects at the hotel, which are supposed to include papers of great value. It is customary in such cases in England to perform an autopsy, but the American embassy has requested that this be waived. The hotel management state that Mr. Buchanan usually dined out, frequently returning at midnight or later.

TRIES TO KILL SWEETHEART

Jealous Man Shoots Girl For Having Other Suitors.

Altoona, Pa., Oct. 18.—Howard Baer attempted to kill Esther May Bathurst by shooting her. Baer has been paying attention to the girl for three years and was extremely jealous when she accepted attentions from other suitors.

Having intended to leave the city permanently, he warned her against other admirers, and when he saw her talking to a young man on the street he followed her. Miss Bathurst, who was accompanied by Miss Edith Carter, had reached a lonely neighborhood on her way home, when Baer stepped up behind her and shot three times, one bullet striking her.

The girl grappled with her assailant, but Baer broke away and ran, but was arrested later. Miss Bathurst's wound is not regarded as dangerous, her corset steel having deflected the bullet.

Woman Killed When Auto Skids.

Tuxedo Park, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Mrs. Bruce Price, a resident of Tuxedo Park and widow of a New York architect, was killed and Mrs. Charles J. Coulter's arm was broken and she was otherwise injured in an automobile accident on the road from Tuxedo to Arden. The car was going north on the main road on the Harriman estate, near Arden station, when the chauffeur pulled to one side to pass a car ahead. The machine skidded into the brush on the side of the road, throwing Mrs. Price against a tree, killing her almost instantly.

Woman Is Jilted; Drinks Laudanum.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 18.—Because she was jilted by a prominent business man of Atlanta, "Queen Zolola," a well known medium, tried to kill herself by drinking laudanum. Her life was saved. "Queen Zolola" has been married four times.

Indicted For Not Keeping Proper Jail.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 18.—A sensation was created here when the grand jury returned indictments against five of the county commissioners, charging them with not maintaining a proper jail.

The same handling of the soil that will produce the largest crop of corn or potatoes will give best results if applied to the flower bed—namely, frequent cultivation of the soil. Over the soil becomes dry and baked, the circulation of moisture and air through it is largely stopped, which means that the growth and development of the plant will be checked. The flower bed should be hoed often enough so that there will be a mulch of loose earth on the surface, with the soil soft and moist beneath.

A WOMAN'S WOMAN.

By ALMA SWARTZ.
(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

"If I were thinking of marriage," I said to Edith. "I would not trust to my own judgment of the girl of my choice. I would discover if she stood well with members of her own sex."

"If I were thinking of marriage," replied Edith, "I would go to the mother of the man I thought of marrying and ask her if she could recommend him."

I could not say whether Edith was speaking ironically or not. I dropped the subject.

I had gone to Florida, where Edith was spending the winter, to ask her to be my wife. Since we did not reside in the same place when at home I had had no opportunity of knowing how she stood with any one except myself. Therefore before making her aware of my intentions I resolved to covertly draw forth the opinions of certain members of her own sex. There were a number of girls at the same hotel with her, and I thought I might gather evidence from them. But after a couple of days' stay among them it seemed to me that Edith either kept herself voluntarily aloof from them or had been left out of their little coterie. I soon became good friends with them and proceeded to elucidate the matter. What was my surprise to discover that not one of them would speak well of her, and many of them spoke ill of her.

This was a shock. I had supposed that good opinions of one who seemed to me to be so deserving of them would come merely for the asking. But no. If I were to sum up her character upon the evidence of those who must know her, rather than marry her it would be better for me that I had never been born. One declared that she was vain, another selfish, another untruthful. Indeed, every one attributed to her some fault. Not willing to condemn her without a hearing, I asked her why she did not make companions of the other young ladies in the hotel.

"Oh," she replied disdainfully, "they've got up a mutual admiration society and have no use for any girl except themselves."

The reply was not satisfactory. I was bitterly disappointed. The only thing for me to do was to go back north and drop Edith from my mind. But she was attractive to me—very attractive. She was pretty and engaging. I didn't wish to give her up. I made up my mind, however, to be true to the principle I had enunciated to Edith herself at the beginning of this story. I packed my trunk and paid my bill at the hotel. Then I did what men are constantly doing when they apply principles to their love affairs. I subordinated my judgment to my inclination. Here were six girls, some of whom refused to speak well of Edith, while the rest condemned her. Her own testimony in her own behalf would on principles of evidence be worthless. Nevertheless, on the evening before my departure I walked with her into an orange grove and asked her how she had come to antagonize so many girls of her own age.

Her reply was that if I declined to consider her superior to every one of them she had no further use for my acquaintance.

I confess I was taken aback by this illogical method of handling the subject. Take the evidence of one against six! If I were to make the most important decision of my life on such evidence, heaven help me! I called her attention to the fact that all these young ladies were her peers and their concurrence in condemning her was not to be put aside by her bare assertion. She replied that if our acquaintance were to continue it must be upon the condition she had stated.

We walked back to the hotel in silence, and at parting Edith didn't even look at me. I went to my room and wrestled with myself. That night I slept but little and the next morning awoke with a languid feeling, not only of body, but of mind. All day I struggled to prevent myself from marrying a girl condemned by her associates. I went to the railroad station, but saw the train leave without me. Edith when I met her on the tennis court took no notice of me. She seemed to have forgotten me over the net. In the afternoon when she appeared, beautifully appareled and with a rose in her hair, I raised the white flag. I asked her to walk with me in the orange grove. Once there I told her that if all the saints in heaven condemned her I would feel honored to kiss the hem of her garment.

"You told me," she replied, "that if you meditated marriage you would discover if the girl of your choice stood well with her own sex. You know what the girls here think of me."

"They are unworthy to express an opinion of you."

She laughed. "I admit," I stammered, "that I have gone back on my principle. Perhaps I have been a fool, but I can't help it." "Yes, you have been very stupid. In the first place, I knew what you came down here for. Any girl would have known that. In the second place, you should not have told me that you were going to ask my friends their opinion of me."

"Yes, all these girls are my friends. I told them if you asked their opinion of me to condemn me."

"What in the name of conscience did you do that for?"

"Do you suppose I would marry a man who would go to some other woman for an opinion of me?"

It is interesting to note how often the robin, one of the most valuable of the bird friends of man, will build its nest and rear its young in close proximity to its habitations. It may be in the Virginia creeper over or near the door, within easy reach; on joist or board in shed or outbuilding or perhaps on the window sill of house or barn. In any event the rooster seems to realize that he will be immune from attack by his human friends, while he has also doubtless noticed that when the rest is so placed his bird and animal enemies seldom come to disturb his quest.

Why I Buy Wooltex Garments

"Another reason"

*Materials.

"The first reason is style—you know that.

"The second is the dependable quality of the materials.

"And because I've worn Wooltex garments for so many seasons, I'm thoroughly familiar with their high quality of material and it's the kind I want to buy.

"There's solid comfort in clothes that may be worn in sun or shower, without fear. The wool used in Wooltex garments is pure wool. The makers don't guess—they know. A sample of the cloth is put into a boiling chemical that would show the presence of a shred of cotton.

"The interlinings and linings are of unusually high grade. Even the sewing silk is tested for pure dye—to guard against fading.

"Another strong point is the color range. One can find a greater variety of colors, in a greater variety of fabrics, in Wooltex than in any other make.

"A fashion bureau in Paris and a corps of designers in Cleveland are constantly producing new Wooltex models. That means you can find exactly the garment you need if you look for a garment with the Wooltex label."

Unlike some other products, particularly those kept for long periods of time in cold storage, comb honey keeps best if stored where it is warm and dry, in temperatures ranging from 70 to 90 degrees. Exposed to frost and dampness it deteriorates very rapidly.

Much may be done to increase the vitality of the ears which grow in the experimental seed plot, whether all of the seed planted in one row is from a single ear or not, by detasseling every other row in the block before they mature pollen. This will insure a cross fertilization. That is, the ears in the detasseled rows will be fertilized by pollen from the tassels in adjoining rows, with the result that the ears in such rows will likely be much more strong and vigorous. It is from such detasseled rows that ears should be selected for next year's seed, the very best being saved for next year's corn breeding plot.

A friend who was classed as one of the fortunate ones in the Tripp county (S. D.) land drawing has recently made a careful inspection of what he deemed the best land yet to be allotted and after debating the matter concluded the land which was still available for entry was not worth the $6 per acre which the government asked for it. He found the land in question stony and sandy and in many places too rough for agricultural purposes, even if the soil and rainfall had been all right. He has this consolation, however—that there are about 2,500 other "fortunate ones" who are in the same boat with himself.

Heat in the Cellar Doesn't Count

It is the heat that gets upstairs that warms the house. A blazing hot cellar is simply eating up your coal pile and your purse, and giving nothing in return. Any old furnace will make heat, but the way to utilize the heat and circulate it through every room in the house is to install the

MODEL Heating System

It will keep your whole house warm, and save a third to a half of your usual coal bill. It is the most efficient system in existence for turning coal into live heat available at the radiators. Makes free from black coals and clinkers.

The LEDOM Range burns just enough coal to make just enough heat to do your cooking quickly, easily and well. Always ready, yet never wasting coal. Has a fine, big, hot oven which captivates every housewife. It's the best range that can be made.

Scientifically Milk
Pasteurized

An un-pasteurized milk is of DOUBTFUL purity, to say the least.

It costs money to properly pasteurize milk. Some dealers don't want to spend that money for their customers' protection.

The Gettysburg Ice & Storage Dairy spends it cheerfully—in its own interest and in yours.

Pasteurizing milk does not alter its quality—does not influence its richness—does not lessen its food value and digestibility.

Pasteurizing milk simply INSURES ITS PURITY. All milk is daily inspected upon arrival at the distributing plant and must be up to the Gettysburg Ice and Storage Company standard of richness, cleanness and perfect chemical constituents. It is passed through a scientific pasteurizer (we have the most perfect pasteurizer outside of Philadelphia) and then bottled direct from the pasteurizing tank and capped—making it germ proof upon delivery to the customer.

Gettysburg Ice and Storage Milk is sold only in bottles and every bottle is twice scoured, jetted with boiling water four times and steamed by a specially constructed apparatus before filling.

Gettysburg Ice and Storage Milk sells for 6c. a quart. Buying it means health protection for family and yourself.

a gentleman, remained standing.

"I'm afraid," he said, "you won't do."

"Won't do?" exclaimed the girl in evident surprise. "What I want is a girl so ugly that she'll never be a temptation for me and can't, therefore, get me into her clutches. I don't wish any woman about the except to cook and take care of the house."

The girl stared at the speaker without making any reply for a time, then took from under her glove a slip she had cut from a newspaper and read it carefully.

"You intended to advertise for a girl," she said.

"Yes, a servant girl who would know her place and not sit in the parlor while her master stands before her like a manservant before his mistress."

The girl sat surveying the advertiser with a curious expression on her face. At last she said:

"You are one of the most sensible men I ever met. It's every woman's object to get all out of a man she can. If you get an attractive woman in here she might snare you. Indeed, she might fall in love with a handsome man like you, and that would be dreadful."

"You, a woman, say this?"

"Only a woman knows a woman."

A beautiful smile overspread Mr. Miriam's countenance. "I'm sure," he said, "that if I gave you the situation you're so honest, so sensible, that you would. I've half a mind to try you."

"You have made a little mistake," the girl interrupted. "I have called to secure the place for a maid I have had in my service for several years and whom I can heartily recommend."

And, taking out a card on which was engraved "Miss Clara Sturgis," she wrote on it her address. Mr. Miriam stood gaping at her in astonishment.

"If you will come to my house this evening," she added, "I will show you the maid. She is a good girl and homely as a Dutch meeting house."

She rose, extended her hand graciously, smiled sweetly and withdrew. Miriam saw her out at the front door and watched her go down the street.

When she turned a corner he went back to his sitting room and exclaimed: "Well, I'll be jingled!"

For the first time in his life he realized the loneliness of a house without a woman.

The same evening Mr. Miriam stood again in presence of Miss Sturgis in the cosiest little reception room he had ever seen. A bright fire was blazing on the hearth. The lady invited him to sit by her before it and began to talk with him in a sympathetic way about the servant problem. She told him that the maid about whom she had spoken to him had accepted a situation, but he could call again in two or three days.

She would recommend another—one who was pitted with smallpox and suffered with bleared eyes. Then she kept him an hour, delighting him with her intelligence, her womanly interest in him. Indeed, an especial charm she seemed to find in him.

Mr. Miriam had fallen into the very trap he had wished to avoid. Miss Sturgis was renowned for making any man she wished fall in love with her. She kept Mr. Miriam calling on her with a view to securing a servant for him and in the end simply made mince-meat of his heart. Then when he asked her to be his wife she stared at him in blank surprise and exclaimed:

"Why, I thought you wanted a servant!"

Mr. Miriam went away crushed. For months he shut himself up—without a maid—and never smiled. Then he told his trouble to his sister-in-law.

"Joe," she said to him, "you're a fool. The lady would never have taken all the trouble to snare you if she had been indifferent to you. Try again, and keep trying."

Mr. Miriam did try again, but in a different way. He secured a dummy. This had the desired effect. Miss Sturgis sent for him under pretense that she had at last found a maid for him. He went and found the maid he wanted.

James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern, is long headed enough to appreciate the vital relation between intelligent farming and big crops and increase in railroad traffic. In order to encourage a better type of farming he has put up prizes aggregating $2,500, to be awarded at the time of the Omaha corn show in December to exhibitors of small grains and grasses living in territory tributary to the Great Northern road. A plan of this kind is not philanthropy, but just good business policy, and might well be adopted by the officials of other roads.

It has been found as a result of experiments in sections where peat soils prevail that the application of a good supply of barnyard manure will do much to make them workable and will set bacterial life to working, which will make their fertilizer content available for plant life. In this respect natural fertilizers seem to be much more effective than commercial fertilizers, which are of an inorganic nature.

STOCK GLEANINGS.

Some Suggestions of Value For the Stock Breeder.

There seem to be much stewing and fretting among many farmers about covering cement floors where the cows lie. It has been proved in many instances that the ordinary cement floor, even with all the straw bedding they can provide, is injurious to cows in various ways. The cold cement floor, and it is always cold to the hand, is very productive in causing udder troubles—like garget—and rheumatism in the body of the cow. Now, it is a simple thing to cover the cement with inch boards. Do this and all will be well. Why not do it?

The hog is a well regulated machine for the transformation of food into crude material for the packing house. The hog which can assimilate the most during a given period is the most profitable to the growers. Therein lies the difference between the purpose bred animal and the razorback, as shown in recent experiments.

From many quarters of the southwest and from practically all parts of the main hog breeding states come reports of a shortage in brood sows. High prices of feed and the extra good prices offered by the packers for all kinds of swine have combined to send the hogs from the farming districts to the packing houses.

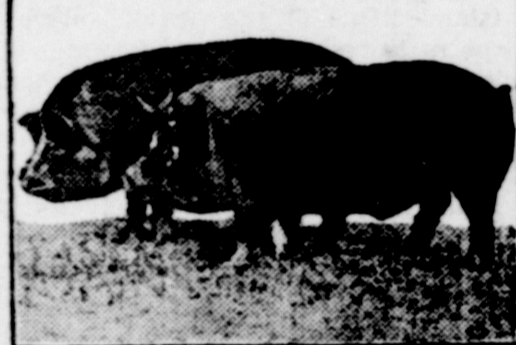

Put a small quantity of copperas in the drinking troughs and tanks for stock. It purifies the water and rids it of the green scum known as alga. Musty or moldy hay is harmful as a feed, and the one who feeds such to his stock will be rewarded by cases of sickness, paralysis and sometimes death.

Ohio has appropriated $25,000 to assist in fighting epidemics of hog cholera in that state. Large appropriations made by other states consist of $15,000 for Iowa and $10,000 for Missouri. Texas has appropriated $1,000 to aid in the work, and other states have given considerable amounts.

Swine Management.

Referring to an authority, it may be of interest to quote a few paragraphs on the care of the young pig:

A hog is half made when past the weaning period without a stunt or kink in its growth. Every check or halt in its prosperity through its first two months is more expensive than at any later period. Too much rich, feverish milk of the dam, causing thumps or other ailment, may leave harmful results, perhaps as much so as scant feeding or other neglect of the sow. More injury may be done to a pig's growth in two or three days than can be repaired in a month even if he is made the subject of special care, which where many are raised is not the rule.

SIX-MONTHS-OLD BERKSHIRE BARROWS.

or easily practicable. Good luck with pigs calls for attention, and that not occasional, but frequent and regular.

From the first week after farrowing until weaning time the sow will be little else than a milk machine, and to be a high power machine in perfect operation she must have proper care. Nothing else is so well calculated to make pigs grow as a bountiful supply of wholesome sow's milk, and the pigs that have plenty of other feed with the milk of a well slopped sow for eight weeks will ordinarily get much the start of those weaned at five or six weeks, no matter how much food and attention the earlier weaned pigs may have had.

Holstein Records.

There are 292 Holstein cows which have official records of twenty pounds of butter fat in seven consecutive days. There are sixteen cows with records of over twenty-five pounds, Grace Payne II's Homestead heading the list with 28.44 pounds and Colantha IV's Johanna standing second with 28.17 pounds. Holstein breeders have a large list of performers to select from in their cattle breeding, and they are taking advantage of it. "Record book" is in demand for grading up dairy herds and for building up pure bred herds.

Dairy Gens.

Milk regularly and at reasonable hours.

The farmer who milks cows is not always a dairyman.

A few good cows are worth more than a lot of ordinary ones.

It's good management, not luck, that makes dairymen profitable.

Spend plenty of time at the dairy barns on the state fair grounds.

The cow that pays through the pail and separator is the cow to keep.

Care in marketing the butter is almost as important as care in producing it.

Fly repellants are still necessary. Do not try to get along without them.

Even forty bushels of wheat to the acre at $1 per bushel can't beat dairy farming.

It's a mistake to build a creamery before there are cows enough to make it a success.

The statement that the Standard Oil company can make better out of its byproducts isn't worrying real dairymen much.

When you admit that you haven't time to test and weigh the milk so as to keep a record of each cow, you haven't time to dairy right.

The forestry problem will never be adequately considered or handled until the practice is followed of always planting a tree in place of that which is cut down. Thus only can we keep head above water horticulturally.

One Oklahoma farmer has figured it out that when a package of black pepper falls off his wagon seat going home from town, and his eyes do not smart when the wind blows the contents up in his face, something has been palmed off on him under an assumed name.

THE MAID HE WANTED

By CORA ASHWORTH.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Joseph Miriam, bachelor, woman hater, advocate of single life for men and lax divorce laws, having tired of his bachelor sleeping quarters and meals at his club, decided to keep house. Having rented a comfortable furnished dwelling in a desirable location, he advertised for a girl to do cooking and light housework. He was not used to advertising for servants and wrote a very poor hand. The slip he handed in at the newspaper office was hurriedly counted by the receiving clerk, stamped for the "Situations Wanted" columns and put through the composing room mill. It ended with the words, "Apply at No. —, Clermont street, between 5 and 6 o'clock p. m."

The next afternoon Mr. Miriam went from business to his domicile expecting to see a mob of servant girls besieging his front door. He was disappointed. No one was there. He went in, sat down, took the evening paper from his pocket, read and waited. At half past 5 there was a ring at the bell. He opened the front door, and there stood a young woman. Miriam thought her well dressed for a servant, but remembered that many a servant in her street clothes might easily be mistaken for a lady.

"I've come about the advertisement," said the girl.

"Come in."

She entered the sitting room and seated herself in an easy chair. Miriam, somewhat surprised at this want of deference on the part of a servant for
